BOLD ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

District Court Hearings - Jury Finds Speak and Irwin Guilty of Battery.

Weber Club Elects Committees for the Year-Wedding Belis - Trans-Mississippi Delegates from Weber Co.

A bold attempted hold-up was made last evening near seven o'clock, at the ogden House Employment agency. At the time mentioned, when the clark would never expect to be held up, it being broad daylight, a well built man about 30 years of age, smooth shaven, sandy complexion, wearing a dark coat and vest and cordurey pants stepped inest and tordurey parks stepen in order and before the clerk had to ask what he could do for him, sitor pulled a pistol and pointed the clerk, and demanded a ticket Ogden. The clerk attempted to n an alarm to the police, but the be traveler told him to throw up nds, whereupon the hold-up slowly out of the door and disappeared. The police were and Captain Browning and Dove Pender responded, and made a ough search of the surrounding thorough search of the surrounding places, but have been unable to locate their man. It is thought he got out of town on the blind baggage.

Heavy Damages Awarded Corbett -Damage Suits Against Mammoth.

Special Correspondence. Nephi, Juab Co., June 13.-In the damage suit of Walter S. Corbett against the Oregon Short Line Railroad company, the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for $15,000. The case of Abraham Jenkins vs the Manmoth Mining company occupied all of the day. The testimony is all in and the arguments will be made tomorrow. This is one of about a dozen cares that were commenced against the Mammoth Mining company by men who were injured on the cage that was being lowered in the Mammoth mine last November, when the cage sudden-ly struck the chairs on the 800-foot level as it was descending to the 1,900-foot level with the twelve men on the double-decker. The plaintiff in this case sues for $10,000 damages. He claims to be injured about the head, spine, chest, kidneys and adbominal viscera. The plaintiff rested at the adjourning hour. The defendants are are making their fight on the ex-ent of the personal injuries. There was very little dispute in the acts as to the manner in which the aceident happened between the plaintiff's testimony and that presented by the defendant. But the greater part of the ay has been taken up by the examinaion of doctors as to the extent and permanence of the defendant's injuries. and in this doctors for the plaintiff do agree in scarcely one particular doctors for the defendants.

Cutler yesterday, Mr. Magrath is pres-ident of the Northwestern Canadian Ir-rigation and Land Co. They were here particularly to visit the beet and sugar industries and they were very kindly shown by Mr. Cutler through the Utah Sugar factory; they were also driven through quite a number of fields of beets, including the forty acre patch over on the company's Saratega farm, and shown the various fields of mother beets which are now just commencing to develop seed. They were very much surprised on finding the beet industry in Utah in such a flourishing and pros-perous condition and were delighted in visiting the excellent beet patches and were simply overwhelmed when they saw the enormity of the sugar works. These distinguished gentlemen are investigating the best sugar business with the end in view of locating and erecting a sugar plant in the near fu-

Special Correspondence.

Provo, Utah Co., June 14.-The general opinion of the faculty of the Brigham Young academy is strongly against the suggestion advanced by Salt Lake educators to the effect that the Church schools should confine their efforts to preparatory school work and become feeders of the University. Some of the arguments advanced in favor of the Church schools continuing in the line was marked out and increasing their facilities for imparting higher educa-tion may be generalized as follows: That the state should first direct its efforts to give all its children equal educational advantages, and increase the standard of the common school system; that the proportion of means now expended by the state is less than $12 per annum for pupils in the common schools and from $40 to $60 for state. dents in the University, which is un-fair to the great majority of its future citizens. And so long as the state can not do educational justice to both the great majority, who obtain nothing higher than a high school education, and the small number who obtain a colege education, it should first provide for a high school education for all the hildren, and let those who desire a colge education obtain it in private in-

That the greatest universities of the try are private institutions. That the Brigham Young academy and other. Church institutions should be let alone; that it is only a matter of time before the academy will have all the money it needs and become the great school its founder intended it to become, presented to give a university education. pared to give a university education supplemented with technical instructions and manual training in trades and mechanical professions.

That the agitation is part of "a scheme to strike the first fatal blow at the Church school system by hitting it

Prof. Brimhall delivered an interesting lecture last evening before the summer school on the above subject. The speaker commenced his lecture by saying that he wished to speak from the point of view that education is that which puts a man in posession of himself. Each class of people is excessive in its ideas of education. The farmer n his demand for a strictly utilitarian aducation; but no more so than the delagogue in his idea of the value of theoretical education. And among teachers some are excessive in one branch and some in another. This, however, tends to equalize things, one holding the other in check. The ideal teacher is one who can place a proper relative value on all studies, and impart an education that will produce men and women of broad and symetri-cal views, sympathies and conduct.

Excesses in Ideals-Inspiring with an ambition to rise to the realm of a hero to be worshipped is excessive. "If I fall my country shall lose a good soldier," was the right idea of the American volunteer, "I would rathe be a good citizen than a poor president,' is the sentiment needed by our young men. "I believe that the struggle towards eminence, even if you never get there, is beneficial; but I believe if with good here and now is better than to have an ambition to be great and good in the future. The Greeks had an am-bition to tive with the gods and wea the robes of Deity, but forgot they had to be men first, and nature turned them back and destroyed them as a nation. The history of nations can be profitably applied to individuals."

Excesses in Environment-Our buildare relatively excessive; their grandeur is out of proportion to our teaching force. The teacher is the soul of the school. Garfield said. "My professor on one end of a log and I on the other constitute a university." A five hundred dellar room with a four hundred dollar or even five hundred dollar teacher in it is a poor educational factor in comparison with a three hundred dollar room, where a six or seven hundollar teacher presides. school buildings are excessive in that. they are too far above our financial support of the teachers. Excess in apparatus-Patent pedagogical panaceas in the form of charts and mechanical devices are almost forced in boards of trustees by agents. The people are indirectly fleeced by the venders of school room non-essentials. The money spent for one article of little use, and often discarded when the nov-elty has worn off, would in many instances, furnish a school with raw material enough to make apparatus of ten times the value of articles made to sell.

Excess in expectation-We are excessive in our expectations concerning the transmission of faculty, power or skill. Skill in tasting does not greatly im-prove the touch; ability to dance well adds very little to the definess of the fingers; power to reason on mathematical problems does not manifest itself greatly in business ocumen; mathe-matical prodigies are often quite deficient in seeing cause and effect relations in practical things. We are excessive in our expectations concerning habits; we expect students who are ac customed to attend classes punctually and are punctual in this respect for five days in the week, to be punctual in at-tending to other duties, but if there is a class of people which it is difficult to get together on time at a meeting, it is students. We expect a man who is liberal in large affairs to be liberal in small affairs, but often find him almost parsimonious. We expect a man who is very polite in public to be the same in his home, but often find him the very reverse—the specific has something to do with the general, but not so much as we expect.

Excess in eagerness for new ideas-So eager are we for the new that we often fail to utilize the old. Ideas are treated like a child treats a toy, and we are not careful enough to crystalize a thought so that it becomes ours until we chase after another,

Excess in intellectual demands-The male and the female are required to lift the same educational weight, when ne should be employed at digging and the other at polishing: for the average female the higher mathematics is an excessive requirements. We read too much and remember too little, and think not near enough; and should read no books that we do not think

Excesses in Teaching-Some of us are guilty of excess in illustration to the extent that the pupil forgets the idea and remembers only the illustra-We are excessive in negative teaching-trying to make people good by telling them how bad some other people have been; preachers, teachers and parents are alike guity of this; but it is not God's plan of making man better, as will be seen by perusing the New Testament.

During the discussion, Professor Nelson on the point of negative teaching, called attention to the fact that, while the ten commandments were mostly negative, Christ saw them as posi-tive and comprised them in two: to ove the Lord and to love our neighbor as ourselves.

At the close, Professor Brimhall advanced as a question-not as a state-ment-whether it was not an excess for the State to expend from $40 to $60 annually for the education of a student at the University, while (outside of Salt Lake City) the contribution for the education of the pupils—the great the education of the pupils—the great majority of whom cannot attend the University—is less than $7.50 annually for each pupil. "Anything done to the help of the few to the hurt of the many s excessively un-American."
